SEAGIRT THE CENTER OF

Activity—Candidate Wilson Answers Congratulations in General Statement to the Associated Press.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Sea Girt, July 3.—"I haven't had time to think of all these things," Gov. Woodrow Wilson came out of the "little white house" sat in an easy chair on his porch, crossed his legs, took off his glasses and thus replied to a bombardment of questions hurled at him by a group of reporters. He was looking rather careworn and tired. "I don't know yet whether I shall appoint Mr. McCormack my campaign manager or suggest him for the chairmanship of the national committee," he said.

"I have not decided whether I shall resign as governor of New Jersey; I haven't had time to read the platform. I have made no campaign plans, in fact I have devoted all my time to meeting callers and to my correspondence. These and other details I shall take up in due time with my friends and fellow workers. They will have to get some rest. To all the thoughtful and generous friends who have sent me messages of congratulation I want to express my hearty thanks.

"I shall not be able to answer them individually I am afraid. They are so delightfully numerous. I hope this inadequate acknowledgment will fall under their eyes.

These messages of personal confidence help immeasurably to make public service seem worth while."

Nearly 7,000 messages of congratulation of Gov. Wilson were in the hands of his secretary before the governor had arisen from the breakfast table.

Among the first received was one from Charles Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall.

"Permit me to extend my hearty congratulations," it read, "Your nomination means a great democratic victory."

From Perry Belmont, "My sincerest congratulations. Under your leadership a progressive democracy will triumph over both the president and his predecessor."

Richard P. Hobson and wife, "We congratulate you, the democratic party and the country upon your superb victory."

Governor Hail, Louisiana, "I extend my congratulations."

A. Pomeroy, U. S. Senator from Ohio, "Accept my hearty congratulations. My services are at your command for the campaign."

Old classmates and pupils from far and near sent messages of good will. "Hooray," wired one ecstatic follower, "School has begun and thus endeth the first lesson."

Governor Wilson slept late this morning after the arduous days preceding his nomination. Visitors began gathering on the lawn in front of the "little white house" before eight o'clock, and nearly a dozen tents erected for telephone booths and other accommodations sprang up on the grounds.

Besides the usual run of enthusiasts many delegates returning from Baltimore were expected at the Wilson cottage today.

Texas delegates, 40 strong notified the governor they would stop over at Sea Girt on their way home.

Practically the entire delegation from New Jersey, is expected and many delegates from Pennsylvania and Tennessee are coming.

The governor retired late last night without knowing officially that Governor Marshall of Indiana had been chosen as his running mate. He was told as early as 11 o'clock. Governor Marshall had been nominated prematurely it was confirmed by the convention subsequent action, but when this action was taken Governor Wilson was asleep.

FIRE EARLY TODAY CAUSES BIG LOSS TO CLINTON PLANT

Creamery Supply Manufacturing Company's Factory Suffered $10,000 Damage by Fire This Morning.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Clinton, July 3.—About 3:15 this morning fire was discovered in the plating room of the Creamery Supply Manufacturing company's plant on East Front street. Some delay was caused in turning in the alarm as the electric mechanism in some manner failed to work and Night Watch Baldwin was compelled to climb the tall steel tower to touch off the bell. This delay allowed the fire to gain great headway and when the department arrived on the scene the rear of the building containing the plating plant and blacksmith shop was a mass of flames which quickly communicated to the packing, billing and shipping departments, and thence to the main contents. The loss will be total on the contents, although the office part was not entirely consumed.

Above the office was stored large quantities of finished products and raw material which is a total loss. The loss will amount to from $10,000 to $15,000, fully covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

BULL MOOSE PARTY PLAN A GATHERING FOR DISCONTENTS

Colonel Roosevelt Says He Will See Call Is Issued in a Few Days for August.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 3.—"I shall, of course, continue to stand for the progressive nomination," said Colonel Roosevelt after he heard of the nomination of Woodrow Wilson. The former president stated his belief that events in the democratic as well as the republican convention demonstrated the need of a new party. The national convention of the new party will be held in Chicago, it was decided, probably during the first week in August.

"Before I left Chicago, and again at Oyster Bay, when Controller Fendler of New York came out to see me," Colonel Roosevelt said, "I stated that the third party movement and my candidacy would not be in any way affected by the outcome at Baltimore. I never go into a fight on a contingent basis. I shall continue to stand for the progressive nomination."

"I have just been given over by Senator Dixon the call which is about to be issued by the national committee for the progressive national convention."

ATTACK ON REBELS WAS ORDERED TODAY

General Huerta Ordered His Forces To Move On Rebels Entrenched in Bachimba Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

At Gen. Huerta's federal headquarters, three miles south of Bachimba, Mex., July 3.—After several days of delay during which the troops by a big flank movement were reaching designated positions General Huerta, the federal commander, gave the word at 5 this morning, to begin the attack on the rebel army gathered near Bachimba, under Gen. Orozco. With a few shells the government artillery had dislodged the rebels from one important position during the night. The troops are being moved cautiously to avoid rebel mines, a number of which have been discovered and exploded. Explanation of the reported catastrophe of 2 days ago when a big explosion was heard in the rebel camp was made today in the report to headquarters. A rebel mine destroyed a big water tank, seriously injuring a civilian and slightly wounding another. A rebel force of 1,000 men, reaching the rebel town of Bachimba, Mex., July 3.—Impatient at the dilatory tactics of the federalists who for three days have been marching their troops to within 20 miles of Bachimba, and then turning back, the rebel army directed by General Orozco, early today prepared for a federal attack. Shells from the battery artillery of the federal forces began falling near the hills where the rebels are entrenched two miles from Bachimba shortly after 11 a. m. today. At the same time the federal cavalry in three columns began moving up slowly.

Shortly before noon the shelling by the federalists became more frequent. The rebels finally answering with their artillery while rebel sharpshooters waited for the federal cavalry to move into range. The federal shells were not well placed at the opening of the battle and the rebels held their position easily.

Douglas, Ariz., July 3.—Reports from federal outposts indicate the scene of the Mexican rebellion is shifting from the state of Chihuahua Sonora. Rebel victories at Bavispe San Diego, and the occupation of Bavispe south of here indicate that a large force of rebels is invading Sonora on the same line of march the federalists had intended to follow into Chihuahua from Agaprieta. After the 15 hour fight in Bavispe the small federal garrison retired in good order toward Morelos. Rebels claim that more than 30 government volunteers were killed.

TREASURY OFFICIAL ASKED TO RESIGN, ATTACKS SECRETARY

Assistant Secretary in Letter of Resignation to President Taft Attacks Secretary McVeagh

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, July 3.—J. Platt Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, in a spirited letter to the President, Mr. Andrew writes of conditions in the treasury department which are charged to be due to every turn by Secretary McVeagh many of his subordinates and the assistant secretary in his letter of resignation states that the subordinates in the treasury department have been hampered and discouraged at every turn by Secretary McVeagh, by his idiosyncrasies and his impotency for decision. It contained a severe arraignment of the administration of Secretary McVeagh in the conduct of government affairs and created a profound sensation in official circles.

One portion of Andrews' letter to the president is susceptible of being interpreted to the effect that other treasury officials are dissatisfied with Secretary McVeagh's treatment of them.

"For further evidence of the peculiar difficulties which surround the handling of business in the treasury," he suggests that President Taft consult Lawrence O. Murray, comptroller of the currency; L. R. McClung, treasurer of the United States, and several other officials.

Mr. Andrews' letter to "Secretary McVeagh advising him of the resignation discloses the hitherto unpublished fact that Mr. McVeagh was on the verge of leaving the cabinet in December, 1910.

Secretary McVeagh left Washington last night for Dublin, N. H., to spend the 4th of July. Senators Crane, Lodge and Smoot, it is understood, have had frequent conferences with the president recently in a vain endeavor to bridge the difficulty between Secretary McVeagh and his assistant.

The White House made public a statement written by President Taft: "Mr. Andrews' resignation as assistant secretary of the treasury was requested, submitted and accepted, in view of his failure to obey orders given him by the secretary."

This was the only comment President Taft had to make.

A congressional investigation of Sec. McVeagh's administration in the treasury department is impending as one of the results of a row of long standing between the secretary and one of his assistant secretaries, a row which culminated today in Andrews' resignation. A few hours later Representative James Cox of Ohio introduced a resolution proposing a complete investigation of Mr. McVeagh's administration.

Very often you hear the expression "Advertising doesn't pay," but you may nearly always be sure that the one making the statement is an "in and out." No man can be disappointed if he advertises consistently and steadily unless what he is offering contains no merit.

THREE ARE KILLED WHEN AUTO TURNED TURTLE LAST NIGHT

Duluth Woman and Her Guest and Chauffeur Crushed When Car Skidded on Turnpike—Two Others Injured.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Duluth, Minn., July 3.—Life was instantly crushed from the bodies of Mrs. William White, Duluth; Miss Gladys Richardson, Bridgeport, Conn.; and Lanford Maddigan of Duluth, the latter the chauffeur, about midnight on a country pike near Duluth last night when the touring car in which they were riding skidded and overturned pinning the occupants beneath it.

William White, Jr., was seriously injured about the back and is at a local hospital. Miss Nannie Turkish, daughter of Henry C. Turkish, the lumberman, was severely shocked and lay apparently lifeless at the roadside until carried to a nearby farm house where she was resuscitated.

Charles W. Fitzgerald, the sixth member of the party, was thrown clear of the wreckage and escaped without injuries. Regaining his feet he found efforts to move the heavy car fruitless and ran along the road to a farm-house where he secured four men, who pried the touring car from the bodies and found the two women and chauffeur dead.

The point at which the tragedy occurred is about four miles from Pike lake where the turnpike begins in a gentle slope from the higher ground to an abrupt turn. When the car arrived at the turn it was running at about ten miles an hour. At the point where the road sloped to the left with a narrow ditch at the base the car skidded and overturned. The equipment pitched in the air and landed bottom side up.

The party had spent the afternoon and evening as the guests of Miss Turkish and Charles Fitzgerald, at the latter's cottage at Pike lake. Miss Turkish is the daughter of Henry C. Turkish, a lumberman.

Miss Richardson was twenty years old and her home was in Bridgeport, Conn. She was the guest of Miss Turkish and had been at her home for some days.

Mrs. White was about fifty-five years old and was the wife of William White, a prominent retired merchant. Lanford Maddigan was the son of Mrs. Nellie Maddigan, manager of a well known employment office.

CONVENTION CLOSES WHEN MARSHALL IS CHOSEN ON TICKET

RELIEF FELT BY DELEGATES WHEN GOV. BURKE WITH-DRAWS IN FAVOR OF INDIANA MAN.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Baltimore, Md., July 3.—In the dying hours of the democratic national convention this morning, for a time it seemed as if there would be a deadlock over the nomination for vice-president. Governor John Burke of North Dakota, for whom Mr. Bryan had expressed preference for the second place on the ticket, had polled enough votes on the first two ballots to block the nomination of Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, the leader.

The third ballot had just been ordered when the chairman of the North Dakota delegation obtained recognition from the chair and said:

"North Dakota offered her three times governor of the state to the party, believing him to be the strongest running mate for Governor Wilson, if that could be done. We made the best fight we could for him, but we are beaten and we therefore withdraw his name, assuring the convention that wherever there is a fight for democratic votes next fall, Governor John E. Burke will be found in the thick of the fight."

The speaker then moved to make the nomination of Governor Marshall unanimous. Immediately there was a wild scramble for the door. Chairman Jones' gavel fell at one o'clock, thus marking the conclusion of one of the most notable conventions in the history of the democratic party.

William J. Bryan remained a central figure to the last. A short time before adjournment he made his valedictory speech as he called it, transferring the party standard to the shoulders of Governor Woodrow Wilson.

The respectful attention with which the speech was received and the applause at its conclusion were tributes to his leadership.

A large number of the delegates left the city after the nomination of Governor Wilson yesterday afternoon without waiting for the final session. Those who remained showed the relief they felt that the fight was over and a spirit of hilarity prevailed among them.

The Missouri delegation, loyal to the last to "Old Champ Clark," joined in the revelry as best they could and mingled their cheers with those for Woodrow Wilson from their convention neighbors, the twenty-four from New Jersey.

SENATE KILLS HOUSE DYE TARIFF MEASURE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, July 3.—The house chemical tariff revision bill amended to place dyes used in coloring cheaper cotton goods on the free list, was defeated in the senate today thirty-two to twenty-six. The bill would have reduced the rate on many articles, such as the present chemical schedule, by about twenty-five per cent and would have transferred others, including pepper, cinnamon, cloves, licorice and balsam from the free list to the dutiable list.

The senate today agreed to the joint resolution appropriating $1,350,000 for the encampments and maneuvers of the organized militia of the states. The appropriation was originally in the army bill which was vetoed. The resolution now goes to the president.

Republican congressman who talked with President Taft today expressed confidence that he would be elected.

100,000 VOLUMES ADDED TO SCHOOL LIBRARIES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 3.—Approximately 100,000 volumes were added to the school libraries of the state during the two years just closed, according to a statement prepared by O. S. Rice, state library clerk. His statement will be used as part of the exhibit of the National Education association at Chicago this week.

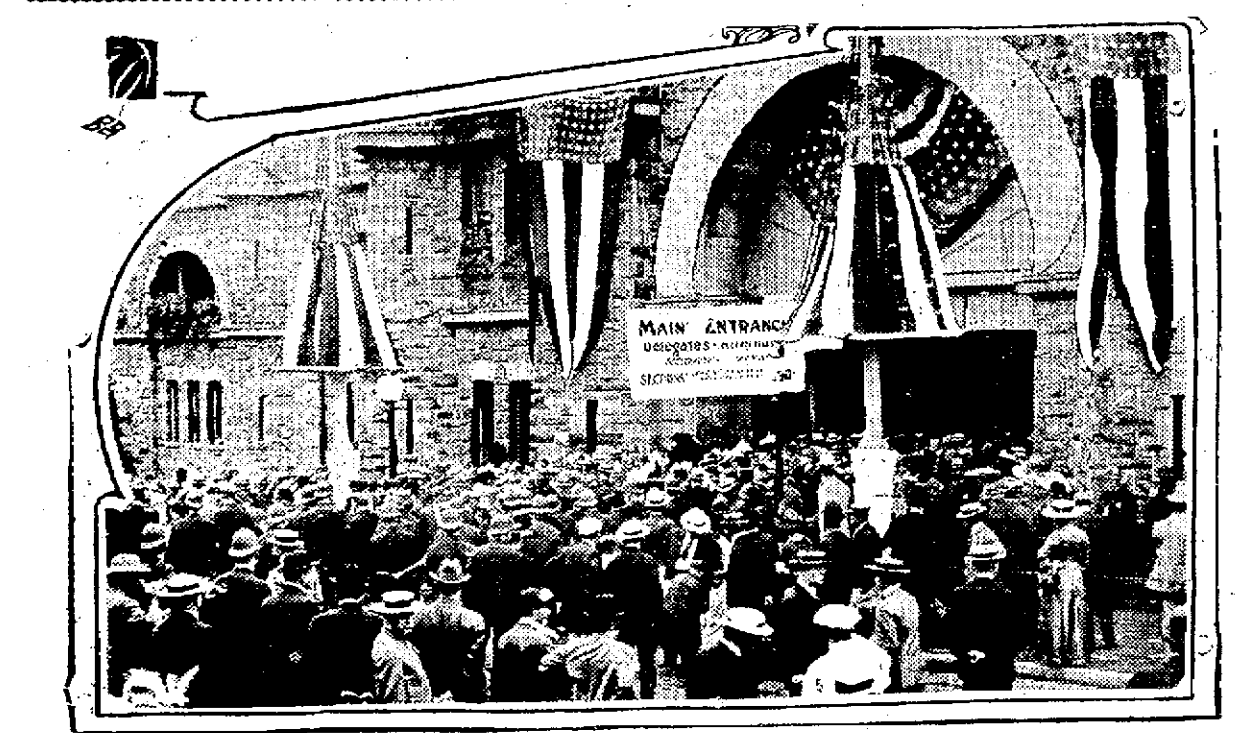

"The school libraries of the state contain about 1,500,000 volumes, costing over $500,000," said Prof. Rice. "Additions are being made at the rate of over 100,000 volumes per year. In addition, approximately 1,000,000 books in the free public school libraries of the state are at the service of the schools. The high school libraries contain over 200,000 volumes."

School libraries are built up as a result of a tax of ten cents paid by the state for each child attending school in the district. The books are selected by the county superintendent from lists prepared by the state superintendent.

FORD

HOW HE DOES IT

By W. C. Kernaga.

There's a man you men know and some of you envy. He's drawing about the same salary you are—but you say he's better dressed and you can't understand it.

His secret's out—he reads the advertising columns of The Gazette.

But that isn't all—for more reading won't put clothes on his back and won't buy neckwear.

He profits through his reading of advertisements.

That blue shirt he wore today was a sure $2.50 value. He paid $1.15 for it—bought five others last July at the same price. $6.90 at 7 per cent interest would amount to 48 cents. He saved $4.62 not by reading that advertisement.

The Panama he wears looks as though it might have cost $15—but it didn't. He buys his shoes and underwear from firms that advertise—he picked up that auto through reading the classified ads, and he can sell it today at a profit.

And he's only one of hundreds of people right here in Janesville who are profiting week in and week out through reading the advertising news that appears every day in The Gazette.

CAMPBELLS ON HIKE FROM HOME IN IOWA

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Campbell Have Completed Journey on Foot From Muscatine to Rockford.

Somewhat weary after a hike of two hundred miles over dusty highways and through the heat of a summer's sun, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Campbell, formerly of Janesville, arrived in Rockford yesterday morning from Muscatine, Ia., and proceeded to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Palmer where they are now spending several days in recuperation before they finish their trip to this city. Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Palmer are sisters and the daughters of Elmer Maine of this city.

The Campbells left Muscatine, Ia., June 17, and walked 18 miles their first day out. They have averaged 20 miles a day and have slept out of doors every night excepting five. Two nights were spent in a farm house, two in barns and one in a bowling alley at Eagle Point, Clinton, Iowa. Rain forced them indoors on these occasions.

They tramped from Muscatine to Dubuque where they spent a week. They left Dubuque at 10:30 last Friday morning and Freeport at 5 o'clock this morning, arriving in Rockford at 11:25 a. m.

They do their own cooking by the roadside and it is easy to imagine that they do not require tonics to work up an appetite.

Both of the trappers carry walking sticks. Campbell wears khaki and Mrs. Campbell wears bloomers, but she slips a skirt over them before passing through towns and cities. Their paraphernalia is carried in a couple of sacks, one of ten pounds, which is carried by Mrs. Campbell, and one of about 20 pounds which Mr. Campbell shoulders. A basket containing some cooking utensils completes the outfit. They sleep in a sleeping bag after the fashion of Arctic explorers.

Both have enjoyed the trip immensely and when they arrived in Rockford yesterday were in the best of spirits enjoying the satisfaction of having reached their destination. They are expected in Janesville tomorrow or Friday where they will visit relatives and friends before starting on their return journey. The total mileage of their trip here and return will be four hundred miles. Mr. Campbell is physical director of the Y. M. C. A. at Muscatine and was formerly assistant in the local Y. M. C. A. physical department.

"BILLY" SULLIVAN TO RAISE APPLE CROPS

Former Local Ball Player Now With 'White Sox Plans for Future in West.

The Pacific Monthly Magazine for May presents the fact that Billy Sullivan is no longer a member of the White Sox baseball club of Chicago. Quite an ornate sketch is given of how Sullivan, Fielder A. Jones and Joe Tinker, the giant killer of the Cubs, have established a fruit farm near Newbury, Oregon, which they have proudly named "White Sox Orchards." A photo of "Billy" and his baby boy is shown and the following pleasant notice is also given:

"And there is the redoubtable Billy Sullivan who joined the White Sox in 1901 and has been with the team ever since. Sullivan was behind the bat with the White Sox and became equally famous with Jones in the championship series during those exciting days. He too saw the 'writing on the wall' and came West to make his fortune. After Fielder Jones retired from the game to enter the timber business in Oregon, Sullivan followed in his steps and coupled with him in a number of his investments. The many friends of 'Billy' will loyally wish him the best of luck in his partnership with the big, red checked apple.

WILD PIGEONS FLY BY THE THOUSANDS

J. E. Inman Writes From California of the Flight of Wild Pigeons Over Grain Fields.

J. E. Inman, who left Janesville a year ago to make his home in California, sends back the following story of the flight of wild pigeons over the grain fields of California by the thousands.

Wild pigeons by the thousands, a rare sight for this section of the country, have been passing back and forth from the foothills to the grain fields near here for the last two days.

Where they came from no one knows, and where they are bound for is problematical. But they have been here long enough for several local nimrods to bag several of them, and are expected to stay long enough to draw the local sportsmen out in full force.

Large flocks are flying over from Canyon, Sandy Gulch and most every draw leading into the foothills.

There is no season limit on the shooting of this bird.

The pigeons are what is thought to be the band-tail variety. They are migratory by nature, and never settle in any one locality long. This wandering proclivity is given as the reason for existence in such large numbers, the hunters being given little time to reduce the flocks.

The birds are slate-like in color. The cocks have bronze necks, with white stripes on the backs of their necks and black bands on their tails.

All the birds shot so far have been young, which is considered peculiar for this time of the year. It is considered evident that they were hatched in the mountain not many miles from here.

There were thousands of wild pigeons of different varieties in the East some years ago, but practically all of them have disappeared. Their present location has been the source of much curiosity on the part of Eastern sportsmen.

SCHOOL BOARDS TO MEET FRIDAY NEXT

County Superintendent Antisdorf Will Issue Call for Meeting at High School Building.

County Superintendent O. D. Antisdorf will issue the call for the annual meeting of the members of the district school boards to be held at the high school building in this city on Friday, July 12. This date was decided upon after receiving the opinions of a number of the school clerks and as a result of a vote taken at the meeting last year when it was decided to hold the meeting in July.

Notices will be sent to the clerks of the various districts within several days asking their attendance. The meeting is held under the state law which required the clerks of the rural districts to attend, and which provides that the other members of the boards may or may not attend as they desire. Each board member present is allowed $2 for the day and mileage.

Superintendent Antisdorf has arranged for a number of prominent speakers to address the meeting on subjects of current interest relative to rural school work. Among those who will speak and their topics are the following: "The County Training School," Prin. E. J. Lowth; "School Laws of Interest at the Present Time," J. B. Borden, assistant state superintendent; "School Reports," an address in regard to educational systems, S. G. Lindholm, connected with the state board of public affairs; and "Coming Problems in Our Rural Schools," by W. E. Larson, state rural school inspector. State Superintendent C. P. Cary will probably be present at the meeting and will give an address.

It is Mr. Antisdorf's plan to secure a discussion of the various topics which are presented and in the notices which he will send out he will suggest certain problems which he would desire more fully treated. The idea will be to arouse interest among the board members in regard to the school problems so that they will ask questions with the idea of attaining some satisfactory solutions.

DAVIES SLATED FOR 'A POLITICAL PLUM'

Madison Man is Said to be in Line For Handsome Reward in Case of Wilson's Election.

Madison, Wis., July 2.—Joseph E. Davies of this city, democratic national committeeman for Wisconsin, is currently reputed to be a prospective beneficiary of a choice political reward if Woodrow Wilson should be elected president. Some of Davies' friends go so far as to suggest that he may be selected as a member of the cabinet, and some less enthusiastic believe he will be Wilson's adviser and dispenser of political edicts in the western states.

The Wilson boom had scarcely started a year ago when the University of Wisconsin extension department invited Gov. Wilson to address a national social center conference here.

Davies and his friends used this opportunity to start an organized campaign for Wilson presidential delegates in Wisconsin. Wilson was so impressed with Davies' ability that he selected him for his western manager. Since last February Davies has devoted his time entirely to the western campaign. After the primaries in Wisconsin, Davies helped in the organization of the campaign for Wilson delegates in Illinois, Minnesota and Michigan. His law partner, John A. Aylward, is president of the Woodrow Wilson League in Wisconsin.

Another law partner is Michael B. Obrecht, a strong La Follette partisan, who placed the senator's name in nomination at the Chicago convention.

As soon as the Clark boom became formidable in the east, Woodrow Wilson sent for Mr. Davies to take charge of the campaign in Massachusetts.

After its close Mr. Davies remained in the Chicago office directing the Wilson campaign. He and Mr. Aylward are in entire sympathy with the Bryan and Wilson movement.

From good authority it is estimated that Davies has spent upwards of $4,000 of his own money in Wilson's campaign.

"Titanic" as Baby's Name.

A baker, on registering the birth of his daughter, at Arad, in Hungary, informed the registrar that he intended to have her christened Titanic, as she was born on the day the White Star liner sank. The official, however, refused to accept this name, as it is not to be found in the calendar of Roman Catholic saints' days, and the baker had to content himself with the less typical name of Rosalia. In this case the rule of the church, which is upheld by the state, saved the child from bearing through life an appellation which is not only unsuitable, to say the least of it, for a little girl, but would also recall for many years one of the most tragic disasters of modern times. Sometimes, however, the rule operates rather hardly, as when recently a Viennese was not allowed to have his child christened Daisy, after her mother, who is an English woman.

Artificial Graveyard.

What is perhaps the most remarkable graveyard in the United States adjoins the old Spanish church in the ancient Indian pueblo of Acoma, N. M., and took over forty years to construct. The village is situated high in the air upon a huge, flat-topped rock many acres in extent and entirely bare of soil. In order to create the graveyard it was necessary to carry up the earth from the plain 300 feet below, a blanketful at a time, on the backs of Indians who had to climb with their heavy loads, up a precipitous trail cut in the face of the cliff. The graveyard thus laboriously constructed is held in place on three sides by high retaining walls of stone.

Wax Removed.
If candlesticks or the patent holders are unsightly because of wax spots, put them in the oven on a folded newspaper; the heat will melt the wax and most of it will be absorbed by the paper. Wipe them vigorously with a soft cloth or tissue paper as soon as they come from the oven. This treatment removes every vestige of wax—Exchange.

Not to Be Driven Away.
A little city miss was visiting in the country and strayed out into the field one day where there were a few lambs. Exasperated by the incessant bleating of one of the lambs, she stamped her foot and said: "You can tell your ma-a and your pa-a and your family; I've got as much right here as you, and I'm going to stay—so there!"—Delineator.

THE FLAG

By Bishop Henry C. Potter

O banner blazoned in the sky,
Fling out your royal red
Each deeper hue to crimson dye
Won by our sainted dead.

Ye bands of snowy whiteness clean
That bar the waning day
Stand as the prophecy of things unseen
Toward which we hew our way.

Fair field of blue, a symbol true
Of right, of faith, of God,
O'erarch us as we seek anew
The path our father's trod.

Ye clustered stars that gleam above,
Our darkness turn to light;
Reveal to men Heaven's law of love—
Then ends the world's long night.

HOORAY, TYNN-WILLY IS CLIMBING THE SOCIAL LADDER AT LAST!

SPORT SNAP SHOTS by DAN MCCARTY

Life isn't all joy for the prize fighters. Not many of the big ones have to live on charity, but they have their troubles, financial and otherwise, just the same.

Take Jack Johnson and Jim Flynn. A few weeks ago these pugilists thought the prospects were fine for making a big bunch of coin out of their fight on July 4. The first thing that disturbed them was the lack of public interest in the fight. Then Congress came along and passed a law that would prevent the interstate transportation of fight films. And as if this were not discouragement enough, there is now some talk that the Governor of New Mexico will intervene and prevent the fight altogether.

E. W. Smith, a Chicago sporting writer, has been chosen referee for the Jack Johnson-Jim Flynn fight to be pulled off at Las Vegas on July 4.

Manager Charlie Carr, of Kansas City, whom owner Tebeau says is about half the team at present, has jumped to the front in the batting averages of those playing regularly in the American Association league. It is a close race between him and Starnbury of Louisville. Minneapolis still leads in the team clouting by a comfortable margin with Columbus second. Toledo slubmen are also doing some fine work.

C. W. Somers, president of the Cleveland American league club, is overwhelmed with grief. Other teams in the league have been kicking his organization around like a hound dog, and he fails to see where the joke comes in.

"Here we are in the middle of June with a club which looks like the poorest in the league," he wailed the other day. "Can you figure it out? I am sure I can't."

"Men whom we had every reason to believe would come through and fill the bill have failed miserably. The men whom, by experience, we had a right to believe would throw forth all possible energy and try to help us out of the rut in which the club now is floundering haven't helped."

"Just mark what I say, I'll get a club some day. I'll get a club which will go out there and fight whether it is winning or losing. I'll be satisfied then. There would be considerable consolation, even if a fellow lost, if he could feel that his men were trying to do their best."

Betting on the winner of the pentagon in the Western league at this time would be pure guess work. Five teams—St. Joseph, Des Moines, Omaha, Sioux City and Denver—are running neck and neck. Sport writers believe the end of July will find Omaha in first position, Sioux City in second, and Des Moines in third.

FOURTH OF JULY PICNIC TO BE GIVEN AT LEYDEN

Held Under Auspices of Leyden Creamery Association.—Jamesville K. C. Team to Play Ball.

July the Fourth will be celebrated at Leyden with a big picnic in Fish's Grove. The picnicers will have their lunch and the ball games and athletic contests will be held in this place. The ball game will be played between the K. of C. team of Jamesville and the Magnolia nine. Both are confident of victory and a lively contest is assured. The 11:30 a. m. train from this city will stop at Leyden, as will also the 7:00 p. m. train returning.

SOX EXPECT HARD GAME WITH EDGERTON SLUGGERS.

Tomorrow afternoon the Jamesville White Sox will play the Edgerton Sluggers at the latter place. This game tomorrow will be the hardest that the Sox have played this season as the Sluggers have one of the fastest teams in the state. They have defeated every team in this section with the exception of the Sox and the game tomorrow will decide who has a claim to the championship. The White Sox will appear with the same lineup that they always play with and with full determination to win if possible.

The lineup for tomorrow's game will be as follows: Harper, catcher; Britt, pitcher; Stewart, short; Stickney, first; Dalton, second; McGinley, third; Cronin, left field; McKeligue, center field; Porter, right field.

FLYNN AND JOHNSON BOTH FAT AND NEITHER IN BEST CONDITION FOR FIGHT

Jim Flynn.

If the battle at Las Vegas on July 4 goes for any length of time Jim Flynn may get short of wind. He has been unable to reduce his weight to the point which his trainer thought necessary to success. He weighs 185. Johnson is fat, too, and neither goes into the fight in the best condition Flynn desires, however, that his waist will prove a handicap.

COMMERCIAL LEAGUE IN WEEKLY MEETING.

Directors of the Commercial League held their weekly meeting last evening at the Y. M. C. A. and most of the managers were present. There was not any special business to take up.

The crowds which have been attending these games has been very small and it is urged that all who can attend these games to be present, the price of admission is very small and there is no reason why there can't be better attendance. Those present last evening were Carl Little of the Parker Pen, Director Hartwell of the Y. M. C. A., Frank Frankfurter of the Round House, Enright of the Hanson, Campbell of the Recorder and Porter of the Jamesville Machine Co.

CELEBRATION PLANS AT THE GOLF CLUB

Members of the Clinchfield Golf Club Plan for Outing at Club House and Links Tomorrow.

Thursday will be a gala day at the Clinchfield Golf club. There will be mixed foursomes, putting contests for the ladies, the bridge game in the afternoon and the club supper and dance in the evening. It being the regular day for the ladies' afternoon bridge, there will be an unusual number of players and the dance in the evening was postponed from Tuesday last, the regular club day. Many plan to take their luncheon at the club house, as well as dinner, and it is expected a large number of members will be in attendance. In order to accommodate all who may desire meals it is necessary to notify the steward, Mrs. Pugh, this evening or before ten o'clock Thursday morning.

Added interest is given the golf contests of the club by the fact that it has been decided to have a banquet, the last Saturday in November, for all goats who have completed, and the awarding of the silver loving cup to the winner at that time. The winner will be known as the Goatherd for the coming year, the last Saturday being the feast of St. Goatherd. Many contests have already been played and several members are minus their goats in consequence.

Despite his long period of inactivity he appears to be in splendid trim and expresses the utmost confidence in his ability to hold the title against the sturdy Mexican youth. The fight has attracted much attention in sporting circles and the promoters expect a big crowd at the ringside. Jack Welch of San Francisco will referee the mill.

DEMOCRACY'S DILEMMA.

There is a new alignment in the democratic party today. With the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for president and Thomas R. Marshall for vice president, after ten days of strenuous conflict, the bitter arraignment of predatory wealth by William Jennings Bryan, the practical repudiation of the so-called primary vote of the majority of states, where such primaries were held, by the defeat of Clark and the final vote in which all elements united to end the long struggle and nominate Wilson, there is left a bitter taste to the followers of democracy.

There is no question that Bryan went down to Baltimore with the avowed intention of capturing the nomination for himself. He found, however, that the combination against him was too strong; that the "big interests" had decreed his defeat before hand. His first test, on the temporary chairmanship, showed him he was fighting a lost cause. In retaliation, he broke down the barriers, turned the convention for his old friends and supporter, Champ Clark, denounced predatory wealth and nominated Wilson.

If we can judge from newspaper reports the convention was an exceedingly warm place during the ten days of the session. The delegates from New York state, ninety odd, representing the so-called predatory wealth and everything that Bryan announced he refused to recognize, became most bitter against the Commoner. Missouri, the home of Champ Clark, was equally bitter, and showed its disapproval of the whole affair by refusing to make Wilson's nomination unanimous and voting to the last for their choice.

It was a case of rule or ruin and Mr. Bryan seems to have practically ruined the chances of the democrats for a successful united campaign. He has, however, done great things for the cause of republicanism; he has practically eliminated the so-called necessity of the Roosevelt faction for a third ticket and party in the field by forcing Wilson into the race.

True, Mr. Roosevelt will not look at it in that light, but he will find scant support now that Wilson has been put up. He will find small backing from the vested interests he hoped to draw his campaign funds from when they in reality, despite Bryan's warnings, nominated the New Jersey man. Mr. Bryan was paying off an old score when he denounced Bryan and Belmont and Morgan, but in reality he did republicanism a noble cause. Bryan believed that these men had materially aided in his numerous defeats and when he was confronted with the same proposition again he vented his spite.

He worked without consideration of Roosevelt and his cause and today Taft stands more to be feared than ever in the political horizon. It is safe to say that New York state will not be over-anxious to see Wilson win after the direct affront of his champion at their chosen delegates and political managers. Missouri is not related over the outcome. Indiana received a sop in the nomination of Marshall, but Ohio is disgruntled and riled over Harmon's defeat. It will take a lot of work to turn the customary majority of a hundred thousands or better over in Pennsylvania and despite all talk Wisconsin will not swing into the democratic columns under the leadership of Wilson. In fact, democracy is in a bad way. It really had an opportunity of accomplishing much with a hope of landing its nominee in the presidential chair, but this hope vanishes into thin air now that the clouds have cleared and it is seen just who and just what, brought about the nomination of their chosen standard bearer. The Chicago Inter-Ocean sums up the situation in the following manner:

"The representatives of the democratic party, in national convention assembled, have followed the counsels of Theodore Roosevelt and his Wall street backers and have again bowed to the dictatorship of William Jennings Bryan. On the forty-sixth ballot yesterday they nominated Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey for president."

"Mr. Wilson is a native of Virginia and is now in his fifty-second year. After graduating from Princeton he practiced law briefly and inconspicuously and then became a college professor, and was promoted to the presidency of Princeton in 1902. He has written a number of historical and political works, which are chiefly notable as an arsenal of arguments against the positions he has taken in public life."

"In 1910 he became the democratic candidate for governor of New Jersey and was elected. Showing a facile readiness in taking up every socialistic fad by which votes might be caught, he was adopted by Mr. Bryan as his political heir and pushed by him for the presidency. His candidacy has been favored also by the financial influences, known as the Harvester trust group, which has largely supplied his campaign fund, as it did Mr. Roosevelt's."

"It is generally accepted that if he should by any chance be elected, Mr. Wilson would be Mr. Bryan's alias in the White House, and would take the same charitable views of personally friendly 'malefactors of great wealth' that Mr. Roosevelt took of railway robbers in the person of Paul Morton, of the Sugar trust, the Steel trust and the Harvester trust."

"He appears to incline toward Mr. Roosevelt's views of the proper manner of regulating business—that regulation should be by executive discretion for political profit rather than by due process of law."

"Mr. Wilson's nomination against Mr. Taft clarifies the issue and is welcome to loyal republicans. It makes the appeal to the people clearly upon their choice between representative government and the Constitution as it is, with all its safeguards of liberty, and helter-skelter government of first impulses, always ready to disregard constitutional limitations for the sake of immediate results."

"With a suitable campaign of public education no loyal republican and patriotic American need fear the outcome. The American people are not yet ready to accept an academic agitator as their chief magistrate."

This talk of this being a democratic year is always heard early in the campaign. When voters settle down to the real issues at stake the result and talk will be different. The average politician likes to foretell dire destruction, fire and brimstone, if his wishes are not followed out, but some way or other the business man thinks for himself and the working man has also become wise enough not to listen to appeals like this and consider the question of his bread and butter before sentiment.

Uncle Sam was busy Monday adjusting his financial problems so that his workers could be paid for their labors. It appears that the democrats tried to oust General Wood from office as chief officer of the American army and in consequence put this clause in their appropriation measure. President Taft vetoed the idea and in consequence the appropriation was not made. However a few strands of red tape were cut and the men will receive their pay just the same.

New Jersey enthusiasts have come to the rescue of the "starving and thirsty" delegates at Baltimore with financial aid. Five thousand to start with and fifty thousand if needed. All they asked was that the delegates stick to Wilson.

Why not abolish this political campaign and start a triumphate—Roosevelt, Bryan and La Follette. Rome tried it centuries ago but the present generation might profit by their unsuccessful experiences.

Roosevelt and Bryan are in about the same position, politically. It is a rule or ruin fight and the two big parties must be made to kneel down and roll over or they will feel the weight of the dictatorship.

Tomorrow is the day of all days for the small boy. Usually he does not understand the full significance of the event, but he knows it is a time to make a noise and he plays his part manfully.

One thing is certain, that after this strenuous convention the democratic delegates have a lot of good sleep to come. Perhaps they will be caught napping next November. Who can tell?

It is time to hunt up the poison ivy remedies. Also to have a grab hook for the fool that rocks the boat and the idiot that can't swim and jumps into deep water.

Colonel James Hamilton Lewis has been honored with at least one vote at the Baltimore convention. This

SHAVING DONE ON THE INSIDE

Out in Kansas Mr. Jonathan Dill has just been married to Miss Loretta Pickle and that is no joke. It is simply an item of news.

Yes, of Course. As soon as you thought that last ton of coke the weather turned hot as balzes.

The moths have made a sieve out of your last year's spring suit. You should have known enough to fold it up, and put it away in a $48 cedar chest.

You will have to buy new garden hose this spring. You didn't dry it out before you put it away last fall.

A family with nine kids has moved in next door. Did you ever know any other kind of a family to move in?

It was owing to his pink whiskers, doubtless.

It is possible the Outlook and Commoner will join issues. Meanwhile other magazines tell the truth about matters in plain, cold facts.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

HOPE SPRINGS ETERNAL.

You go home after your day's work tired, and it may be, despondent. Things have gone wrong during your day.

You pick up the evening paper. Strikes, lockouts, accidents, cruelties, oppression, injustice, grafting, betrayals, crime, divorces—the recital of it all makes you sick. You say in your heart:

"Everything's wrong. What's the use?"

But—Supper is ready, the good wife brightens up, and the children tell funny stories of the day's doings. By and by a change comes over the spirit of your dreams. After all, there is a lot of good in the world. Life is worth the living.

Now—Perhaps you could not have helped your gloomy mood. Certainly in the reaction comes the cheerful view. You are built that way.

Hope! It always was in the world. From the earliest ages men alternated between hope and fear. And always the fear has grown less and the hope larger.

It is the great urge. Despite the clouds and darkness, forever do men strive and struggle toward the light. Lest he die in despair, a man lives in hope. The urge of better things will not let him rest.

Willingly or unwillingly, there is something in all of us that prompts us to the fight for the right and a better world to live in.

It is the undying hope. Despite all our fears and all our tears we feel somehow the world must slope upward. There is "a power that makes for righteousness."

And, moreover—Because of this immortal urge that is in us the world has grown, is now growing and will continue to grow better. It must be so.

And so our dreams—We dream of the day when all men shall have an equal chance, of a day when gold no longer shall be god, of a day when nation will not lift up sword against nation.

Our dreams? In our better moments all of us dream of that some sweet day when justice shall walk hand in hand with mercy; when Pride shall stoop to kiss her sweeter sister, Humility; when in every land and on every sea men shall meet his fellow man and say to him, "My brother;" when every woman shall meet her fellow woman, however fallen, and say to her, "My sister!"

And thus we dream and hope and labor.

Deadly Glasses. A contrast to the Venetian glasses which were popularly supposed to fly to pieces if poisoned liquor were poured into them, were glasses which poisoned all who drank from them. The poison was crystallized at the bottom of the glass, from which it was indistinguishable, and as it dissolved very slowly it could be used many times with deadly effect. Some such glasses can be seen at the British museum.

First Coal Oil Well. Coal oil was first used as a liniment for medicinal purposes. Colonel Edwin L. Drake in 1859 drilled the first well for oil near Titusville, Pa. It was the beginning of the great American oil industry.

American Cocoa the Best. Now that cocoa has become such a popular and necessary drink, the American factories are making the best in the world. They buy only the highest class of cocoa beans and use the most improved machinery. Most imported cocoas are not ground sufficiently fine, being more or less ground like pepper, while the good American cocoa is as fine and smooth as the best wheat flour, and thus held in solution more readily in milk or water.

next door? Guess not.

Our Ideas. Of a mollycoddle—Man who wears bed slippers.

Of an unexpected event—Having a cousin pay 50 cents he owes you.

Of a catastrophe—Breaking of suspenders in the middle of a two-step.

Of a pest—Friend who tells you how to improve your work.

Of a pleasant evening—Listening to a discussion between two music teachers.

Of a hero—Man who dares say he doesn't like his wife's new hat.

Of a friend in need—Man who wants to borrow your dress suit.

Of a wise precaution. Taking a ham sandwich to a political banquet.

Of unalloyed bliss and mental uplift—Attending a fashionable reception and standing in a corner for an hour and a half holding a fragile cup and saucer.

Dark Days. There are some days when you can't lay up a cent; It all goes out for the ice and gas and rent.

And you may wonder how and when and where You're ever going to be a millionaire. It somehow means that your neighbor gets ahead.

And you stand still, just as though you were dead; But if the whole truth he would but impart He envies you to the bottom of his heart.

Just bear in mind before you call the hearse There's always some one fixed a whole lot worse.

WILL TRY TO KEEP COLO. DEMOCRATIC

A prominent figure in Colorado politics this summer will be Alva Adams, former governor of that state. Colorado is normally Democratic by a small majority, and Mr. Adams believes that the entrance of Roosevelt into the presidential fight will split the Republican vote to such an extent that Democratic success in Colorado next November will be absolutely assured.

Idleness Locked On as Crime. In industrial Switzerland there is no place for the idle. It is considered the duty of the authorities to assist, in every way possible, persons honestly seeking employment, and it is also held to be their duty to punish the work-shirker, and to force him to earn his bread before he may eat it. No toleration is shown to the loafer, begging is prohibited by law, and vagrancy is classified as a crime in the legal code of the Confederation.

American Cocoa the Best. Now that cocoa has become such a popular and necessary drink, the American factories are making the best in the world. They buy only the highest class of cocoa beans and use the most improved machinery. Most imported cocoas are not ground sufficiently fine, being more or less ground like pepper, while the good American cocoa is as fine and smooth as the best wheat flour, and thus held in solution more readily in milk or water.

Rare Muskrat Trapped. An albino muskrat, white as snow, with pink eyes, was trapped in the big Pierce swamp near Fairfield, N. J., the first ever caught in that state.

Eagle Flew Far With Trap. An eagle killed near Edgewood, Cal., carried on one of its feet a field trap which it was learned later had been set at Plymouth, 300 miles away.

Bull Objected to Rider. A millionaire rancher, of Pomona, Cal., was painfully injured, recently, while attempting to ride a large red Durham bull. He had made a wager with another rancher that he could remain on the bull's back for two minutes, faith in his ability to win the wager being based upon his experience in broncho riding. He lost the bet by just 117 seconds, for three seconds after he mounted the animal's back, he was seated in the center of the corral nursing a badly wrenched hip and shoulder.

EXODUS FROM CITY FOR OVER THURSDAY

Janesville Will be a Quiet Place to Spend the Fourth and Many Will Seek Diversion Elsewhere.

Undisturbed by gathering throngs of pleasure seekers, with stores closed and hundreds of people joining in the exodus to celebration cities and lake resorts, the Fourth of July will be passed in Janesville without demonstration or bluster of any kind. Quiet will reign supreme but for the occasional noise of exploding crackers or the boom of torpedoes.

Even the pre-celebration days, usually a time for experimentation on the part of the patriotic boy who early spends his summer savings for hoards of crackers, have been decidedly free from unnecessary sounds and explosions, which further indicate that Janesville will be a good place to spend Independence Day. It is also probable that there will be no accidents here to mar the day's quiet, for the disappearance of the giant crackers and dangerous "toy" pistols has reduced the dangers to a minimum.

Although this freedom from noise and excitement will be welcomed by some, it is probable that three or four thousand Janesville people will join the throngs of celebrationists at the various cities where entertainment will be provided. It will not be necessary to travel far for Edgerton, Beloit, Clinton, Footville and Milton are among the places rich in rock pickers, where every effort will be made to make tomorrow a "big day." Each of these celebration points will draw their quota of local "patriots."

While the excitement of street crowds will appeal to many, to a far greater number the pleasant picnic and excursion trip up the river or to anyone of the numerous lakes in southern Wisconsin will be more attractive. The exodus to these places has already begun and will continue until tomorrow morning. Every sort of transportation facility will be utilized in the rush to get away for brief spurs and tomorrow evening the picknickers and excursionists will return, tired but happy, and the 13th anniversary of our nation's birth will have been duly celebrated.

LATEST PIPE STORY FOR PIPE DREAMERS

Calabash Raising for Pipes to Become Prominent Industry in State Perhaps?

According to the Madison State Journal calabash raising may become a new industry to compete with tobacco, sugar beets and No. 7 corn in Dane county if the visions of Rasmus B. Anderson are to be realized. The calabash is an African gourd used in the making of pipes. Its natural color is white, but it takes on a rich brown hue from use. It has been demonstrated that it can be grown in this latitude and Mr. Anderson has obtained fifty seeds and a piece of ground on the T. K. Reinhardt farm in the town of Burke and will raise his first crop of pipes this year. These pipes sell anywhere from $1 to $10 each and Mr. Anderson figures that from these fifty seeds he should get 200 gourds and enough seeds to plant several acres and "with pipes at from $1 to $5 each—see how the pipe dream broadens."

MRS. ROBT. BARLASS SERIOUSLY BURNED

Clothes Took Fire When Kerosene Exploded, Resulting in Injuries to Arm and Body.

Mrs. Robert Barlass, residing east of this city, sustained serious and painful burns about the left arm and side, when the kerosene which she was pouring into the stove to start a fire exploded suddenly yesterday.

Mrs. Barlass was trying to start a fire in the coal range and supposed all the fire was out. She had poured kerosene on some chips which she was using as kindling when the flames burst out from the lower draft door. They caught on her clothing and in an instant she was a mass of flames.

She uttered a terrified scream which was heard by her mother-in-law, Mrs. J. T. Barlass, whose home is but a short distance away. She immediately rushed to the scene and found her daughter-in-law on the floor, her clothes still in flames. By prompt action the flames were extinguished and medical aid immediately summoned.

Dr. F. B. Farnsworth who was called, found her left arm very seriously burned below the elbow, and several very bad injuries on her body from which her clothes had been entirely burned on the left side. He dressed the wounds yesterday and stated to day after visiting his patient that her condition was not serious and that he expected a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Barlass was formerly Miss Ada Finch and has a large circle of friends in Janesville. She was married to Mr. Barlass about a year ago.

CONVENTION DOINGS TOLD BY BULLETINS

Gazette, Furnished News of the Baltimore Gathering During the Entire Time of Balloting.

Kept in close touch with the happenings of the Baltimore convention by the Associated Press, the Gazette furnished bulletins throughout the city with the latest news of the way matters were going, giving the tabulated vote on each ballot, both afternoon and until late in each evening the contest had been held. Many telephone calls were received during the week all of which were promptly answered and the service, which wound up with the extra published at three twenty yesterday afternoon, with all the happenings of the convention yesterday including the nomination of Wilson, were well received. The Associated Press gave a full and explicit account of the convention from an unbiased point of view and with the difference in time, of an hour, Janesville readers of the Gazette knew the latest news of the time of going to press. The bulletins were received over the long distance telephone and came at such frequent intervals that there was very little break. In fact the news of Wilson's nomination was received in the Gazette office at 2:15, which was within six minutes of the time it really became an accomplished fact.

EXPECT STATE MONEY FOR COUNTY SCHOOL

Annual Report of Training School Will be Sent to Superintendent's Office Shortly.

The first annual report of the Rock county teachers' training school has been prepared and has been sent by Superintendent Antisdel to President Charles E. Moore of the training school board for his signature. Mr. Moore will then send the report to the office of the State Superintendent, C. P. Cary, and after its approval the county will receive the sum of $2,000 which is due according to the state law providing aid for training schools after the school has been in session for one year.

It is expected that the money will be received within a short time as there can be no possible objection to the work of the school. Mr. Cary in an inspection trip this spring stated that he was more than gratified with the work which is being done at the Rock county institution.

PHONE COMPANY ALLOWED TO INCREASE ITS RATES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 3.—The Wisconsin railroad commission in an order today permitted the Farmers' Telephone Exchange of Richland Center slightly to increase its rates for service. A report was filed last December showing that present rates for service were insufficient to yield adequate revenue. The valuation of the plant was fixed on June 1 at $28,123. The commission found with regard to rural business that there was an apparent deficit of $1,365. In establishing new rates it permits the company to charge $1.75 per month for business phones and $1.25 for residence phones. The rate for rural phones owned by the applicants was fixed at $1, with a switching charge of twenty-five cents per month if other exchanges are used.

URGE FARMERS TO RAISE FISH

"There are signs that the time is not far distant," said William E. Meehan, former state commissioner of fisheries and present director of the public aquarium in Fairmount park, "when farmers will consider fish culture as important a part of their calling as the raising of grain or potatoes or poultry. When that day arrives the fish industry of Pennsylvania will rank as high as any other industry. There are few farms in Pennsylvania without springs, a stream and swampy land of which no use is made and upon which the farmer pays taxes without any return. Most of the streams and the springs and the swamp land could be utilized for the rearing of fish. Under intelligent care an otherwise useless piece of wet land can be made to yield as much, acre for acre, as the most fertile land." — Philadelphia North American.

REQUESTS REDUCTION IN HOUSE VALUATION

M. G. Jeffris Asks That Assessment of Residence be Lowered From $20,000 to $15,000.

M. G. Jeffris appeared before the Board of Review this morning and requested a reduction in the assessment of his residence property on St. Lawrence avenue from $20,000 to $15,000. Mr. Jeffris was sworn and his testimony noted by City Clerk Hammarlund, clerk of the board. Under the re-assessment the property mentioned was assessed at $23,000. The Board of Review reduced this to $20,000, the residence being valued at $14,000 and the lot at $6,000. This figure was not changed in the last assessment. Mr. Jeffris contended that the property did not have a maximum selling or market value of more than $15,000, and that this was the proper assessable value. Assessor Frank Smith had no testimony to give in the case except to state that if the valuation of the Jeffris residence was reduced a number of others would be entitled to reductions.

M. O. Monat, a stockholder of the First National bank, asked that a correction be made in the valuation of the bank stock. Through some clerical error the building had been included as an asset in computing the value of the stock. The building is assessed separately. Mr. Monat gave his testimony under oath.

McNAMARA CASE TALESMAN TELLS OF BRIBERY ATTEMPT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Los Angeles, July 3.—A J. C. Krager, a talesman in the McNamara case, told the jury in the bribery trial of Clarence S. Darrow today of the alleged attempt of Bert H. Franklin to bribe him. Attorney Fowler, according to the witness, asked him to "stick" on the McNamara jury. "He picked up four matches from the floor, said Krager, and said that there would be that much in it for me."

Anti-Drudgery Club.

Six women in Chicago have organized a club to lessen household cares. The club is the possessor of an electric vacuum cleaner, one electric washing machine, two electric irons and a fan for drying the washing. The only dues are those required for the upkeep of these labor savers, and this amount has been estimated to be about three cents a week. The initiation fee consists of the price of the apparatus divided into six equal parts. The members arrange their work so that a small boy may take the apparatus around to each in turn. They live in one neighborhood, so the affair is easily arranged. How practical; how easily the idea could be expanded to take in any number of housekeepers. What a help it would be in solving the servant problem.—American Club Woman.

Dinner Stories

Mr. A—who was planning to build an outdoor sleeping porch at the back of his house, had an expensive new saw sent home from a hardware store. He left his office early the next afternoon, with the intention of getting the porch well under way before dinner; and, as he was very much interested in doing the work himself, he loaned a pair of overalls and went at it in good spirits. An hour or so later he came tramping into the house, his face dark with exasperation, and flung himself down in disgust.

"That new saw I bought isn't worth 6 cents," he stormed. "Why the thing won't cut butter!"

His small son, Tommy, looked up in wide-eyed surprise.

"Oh, yes, it would, daddy," he said, earnestly; "why, Ted and I sawed a whole brick in two with it, just this morning."

A new congressman, having been elected to fill a vacancy, blew into Washington early in December. He was assigned to a room in the house office building. On the morning following his induction into the house building he went to his own office.

As soon as he entered the room he emitted a loud roar.

"Police!" he shouted. "Murder! Help!"

They came running from all directions. "What's the matter?" they asked.

"Why," he shouted, "when I left this room last night there was a grand new typewriter machine standing there on that desk, and when I came in this morning, it was gone. It has disappeared. Somebody has stolen it. I demand a detective to trace down this foul crime."

So they had a look and discovered that the desk on which the typewriter stood had one of those disappearing devices and that somebody had come along and turned the typewriter down into the bowels of the desk.

The late Admiral Evans was once taken through the Vanderbilt stables in New York. The stable manager showed him walls and floors of pale trowels, managers of Circassian wall-paper, solid silver fittings, and so forth.

"Do you find anything lacking, admiral?" said the manager, proudly, at the end.

"Nothing," the admiral replied, "nothing except a leather-upholstered sofa for each horse."

WEATHER WILL BE COOL NEXT WEEK

Following Present Hot, Dry Spell, Forecaster Foster Says Cool Wave Will Cross Country.

(Copyrighted 1912 by W. T. Foster.) Washington, D. C.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent July 6 to 10, warm wave to 9, cool wave 8 to 12. This will bring all the extremes known to summer weather. On the approach of the warm wave you may expect excessive heat in the south and in the east of the Rocky crest you may expect excessive cool weather as the cool wave approaches. Look over my monthly chart or the weekly bulletins and you will see where I expect dry weather in July and where drouth is expected. In the drouth sections the disturbance mentioned above will scatter the crops, while good growing weather particularly for corn and cotton, may be expected in the wet sections.

Most rain for July seems to be due for upper Ohio valleys, about the upper lakes, in vicinity of Houston, Texas, in southern Florida and in Cuba. Principal showers are expected from July 13 to 22 and most severe wind storms July 18 to 26. Electric storms not far from July 23. Unusually cool weather from July 15 to 27.

My readers should keep in mind that our continental weather is controlled by the Rockies and generally east of the plains states, and that the weather of the northeastern states and eastern sections of Canada usually agrees with the weather on the Pacific coast about and north of San Francisco.

The weather events as a rule, are reverse in those northeastern sections and northwestern sections to what it is in the great central valleys. This is more particularly true of temperatures. When I do not specifically locate the events you may know they are for the central valleys and that the reverse is expected for the northeast and northwest sections, which lie east of trend of the Rockies.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about July 10, cross Pacific slope by close of 11, great central valleys 12 to 14, eastern sections 15. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about July 10, great central valleys 12, eastern sections 14. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about July 13, great central valleys 15, eastern sections 17.

While the trend of temperatures will be downward during that week the average temperatures will continue high. Some rainfall is expected but no general rains and therefore as the warm wave comes in the crops in many places will wilt, the corn blades roll. Wherever the crops get through this great hot wave in good condition fair crops may be hoped for but in many places the damage is expected to be great.

A very similar hot wave is expected August 6 to 17 and where both this and the July hot waves strike and only a small amount of rain falls there

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

TALKING FOR BUNCOMBE. By A. W. MACY.

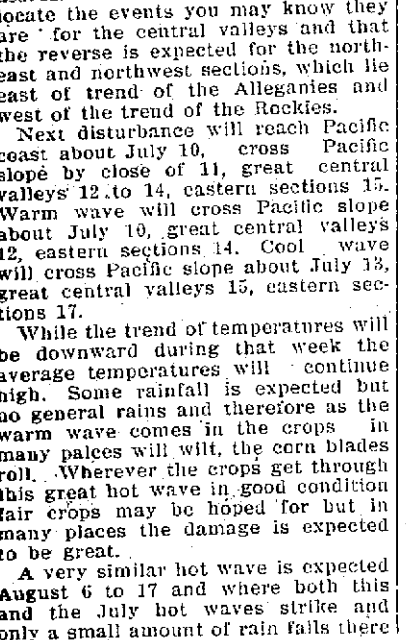

Felix Walker was a representative in congress from North Carolina from 1817 to 1823. He was a man of ordinary ability, with a ready-flowing tongue. On one occasion he arose to address the house, though he had nothing in particular to say. Horatius on and on in a rambling way, and one by one most of the members got tired and slipped out. Finally, noticing that only a few remained, he told them that they might go, too, if they wished, as he expected to continue his speech for some time; and, anyway, he was "only talking for Buncombe"—Buncombe being the name of one of the counties in his district. This greatly amused the members, and "to talk for Buncombe" came to mean, to speak for effect on persons at a distance, without regard to those present; and finally, empty talk, pointless speech-making, baldness.

KNIGHTS OF OLD WHOSE BRAVE DEEDS WON HEARTS, OUTCLASSED BY GEORGIAN

Mr. and Mrs. William Jenkins. We are all to believe Tennessee, the knights of old used to capture the ladies' hearts by winning at the jousts. The knight who could kill the largest number of opposing knights in the shortest time had the edge on all the other knights who were less skillful. A wedding which occurred recently down in Atlanta, Georgia, is a reminder of the good old days when knighthood was in flower. The parties to the ceremony were "Bill" Jenkins, a football player on the Georgia Tech eleven, and Miss Katherine Boothe, one of the belles of Atlanta. Miss Boothe fell in love with Jenkins at a football game in which the latter won for her favorite eleven by his brilliant playing. The admiration was mutual, and it was not long afterwards that he bought the engagement ring.

When a subscriber wrote saying that he had found a spider in his paper and asking whether it was a sign of good or bad luck, the prince of humorists replied: "Finding a spider in your paper is neither good nor bad luck. Other Edgerton News.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, July 3.—At the adjourned regular meeting of the common council last night the important feature of the meeting centered on the rescinding of the ordinance passed ten days ago requiring moving picture shows to pay a license of $50 per year and transients $2.00 per night. A motion to rescind was lost by a vote of four to two. Edgerton's two picture shows now must pay the $50 license or quit business. In addition to the above the regular bunch of bills were allowed. Two petitions, one for street lamps and one asking to have ordinance passed raising the license on street lunch stands to $10.00 per day were read and referred to the proper committees.

MAY STAY, BUT MUST BE NICE

The men of Dayton, Wyo., are all breathing sighs of relief. The town's woman mayor, who was elected on a clean-up ticket some weeks ago, had them scared for a while. They hardly knew to what lengths she would go before she got through. Now she has announced that all men who will promise to be good may stay in the town. Further, she declares that she shall see to it that the women of the town do not impose upon the mere males of the place.

"I'm not going to let the women impose on the men," she said recently. "The men need some fear on that score. We are going to make of Dayton the cleanest town in Wyoming, morally, physically, financially and in every other way. But the women will not run the men out of town. The men can stay as long as they behave themselves."

GRACEFUL COSTUME FOR SUMMER WEAR

Here is a graceful costume in mustard color linen. At each side of the front and back gores are shown shallow plaited insets below the knees, headed by a small motif embroidered in black. The designs on the front gores, on the jacket and sleeves are also embroidered in black, the buttons and girdle are of black satin. The neck ruffle is of plaited tulle.

Windfall, In Old Hat.

There is something more than a joke in inheriting an old hat from an uncle. For the recent Mardi-Gras fete, in Paris, a motor bus driver, wishing to "dress up," borrowed from a restaurant keeper an old battered "top" hat, inherited from a deceased uncle. During the festivities, the wearer, in attempting to adjust his wig, knocked off the hat, and to his astonishment out fell nine 100 franc notes ($180). He hastened to put this unexpected bequest into the safe keeper's hands.

Obtaining Eagle.
A golden eagle which has been in captivity in Maldon, Essex, for 46 years, has just died. It was a female, purchased in Leadenhall market, and for several years made a nest and laid eggs. On one occasion, says the Dundee Courier, her eggs being given to it to sit on, it hatched and reared a brood of chickens, but in other years the chicks were always eaten as soon as hatched.

When John Wants to Read

I WISH you wouldn't read all the time," said Dolly. "M-m-m," replied John, going on reading. "At breakfast, you read the newspaper; and in the evening and on Sundays, it's some book or magazine. All you do is sit with your nose in a book."

"But those are the only times I have to read," said John, turning a leaf. "A man must keep up with the times. It would be a good thing if you'd read more."

"Oh, reading!" said Dolly, scornfully. "You don't catch me reading when there's anything more interesting to do. You can read when you don't feel well, or when it rains, or when there's nobody to talk to."

"I read because I like it," said John, "not to kill time."

"Do you like it more than me?" asked Dolly, to please him.

"Of course not. Don't bother me now. This is the most interesting part."

"Is he asking her?"

"Fshaw! It isn't that kind."

"What kind is it?"

"Oh, you wouldn't like it."

"Oooh! Let me see what it is," said Dolly, fluttering over to him and reading his nose.

"I can't read with you there," exclaimed John somewhat irritably. "There! I knew you liked reading better than you do me," mumbled Dolly. "I don't see why you are so awful stuck on reading all at once. You never used to read before we were married. You said then you liked to be better than anything else." Dolly snuggled back into his arms. John sighed and laid down his book.

"Haven't you any sewing to do?" he asked.

"Sewing!" sniffed Dolly.

"Or—or—embroidery? Where's that thingumjig you've been making?"

"That set for the guest-room?"

"Yes."

"Oh, I've finished that. Would you like to see it?"

"Yes," said John, reaching for his book.

Dolly went upstairs and came down with a bureau scarf, a pincushion cover and a handkerchief case. "I'm getting them ready for Aunt Selma's visit, so she'll think I'm awful industrious. Aren't they pretty?"

"Bully," said John, casting a rapid glance at them. "Isn't there something else to make, though? Don't you need a—a—towel, or something like that?"

"I might embroider some towels to match," said Dolly, meditating. "Just the thing," said John, "match up the whole room. Aunt Selma'll think you are a wonder."

He glanced at her out of the corner of his eye.

"I think I will," she said. "They would be pretty."

"Great!" said John, settling back comfortably in his chair.

Dolly went for her embroidery things, and to get two of her best towels to beautify for the guest room.

As she bent over her embroidery silks, John glanced approvingly at her across the table. "You are a charming picture of domesticity," he said.

Dolly beamed. "I'm glad you thought of the towels."

"So'm I," responded John, lost once more in the career of his book.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

by Edna K. Woolley

Modern woman's manner of dress is assailed by the first woman journalist appointed in Illinois—Miss Mary Bartelme, who has recently been made an associate judge.

"The way women dress now is enough to cause men to insult them," she declared. "We need a few old-fashioned mothers to make their daughters dress properly."

Unfortunately, a good many of the mothers themselves are addicted to the style of dress criticized by Miss Bartelme.

It is a common thing to see a matronly woman waddling along a public street in a skirt too tight—so tight that it would make Venus sick—er in her famous act of arising from the sea without even a modern bathing suit to keep off the sunburn. Yet said matron will skip along unconcerned, even though her knee-length corset can't contain all of her exuberance of flesh; and she will wear with this skirt a waist of such thinness that one can see where the powder puff stopped.

Isn't entirely the young and giddy things who have been wearing the decollette effects on the streets this past winter, and who will bare too much neck and too much arm—and too much leg—to the public gaze this summer. There are old and giddy ones who are just as much at fault. Some of them are mothers, too. Doing a mother doesn't always mean that a woman gains sense along with her children.

One forgives the girls, that some extent, because one feels that they are young and thoughtless, and haven't had good bringing up. But it is pretty hard to forgive a woman whose face shows that she has reached the years of dignity, but whose figure and dress are doing their level best to dispute the fact. Such a woman shows her age far more than one who admits her years by becoming mode of dress. Moreover, she is one of those who cause men to laugh at women's foolishness, and who cheapen other women because of the apparent effort to remain young and fascinating when she might so much better be older, interesting and really charming.

It is the easiest thing in the world for an elderly woman to look ridiculous.

Every woman, young or old, should take pains to keep herself good to look at. Exercise and proper eating should keep her form in trim, and good taste should keep her gowns fitting to her apparent age and general appearance. The elderly woman, rightly costumed, will receive respect and admiration from all.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a chance to marry one of two men. They are both comfortably enough off to give me a nice home, but one is my own age and the other is old enough to be my father. I rather like the older man better, though I am very fond of my other friend. I want to school together. I am undecided, and will you please help me? Do you think I have a good chance of being happy with the man who is so much older than I am? I am twenty-three years old. He is very good to me and never disagrees with me, but sometimes my young friend and I just have to quarrel a little. Please advise me and I will be very grateful.

SOPHIE.

My dear girl, if your heart doesn't tell you which of these men is your real mate, how can it? Possibly you really do not love either one. Do you remain unmarried all your life than try to live with a man who, in your heart of hearts, you know is not the other half of your life. Sometimes a girl can marry a man as old as her father and live very happily with him. But oftener she finds that he has reached the time of life when he wants to settle down, though she is still full of youth and wants to actively enjoy life. By the time she is old enough to like the quiet life he is so old that she must wait upon him and take care of him as if he were a child. A man of your own age can be more of a companion to you. If you and he have congenial tastes you ought to get along well together all your life, growing old together and growing closer to each other with the years. A young man, of course, is apt to be quicker tempered than the older one, but if both you and he agree to "bear and forbear" and to use the "soft" answer that turns away wrath, you will find that you will get along well together all your life. I don't see why you can't cultivate peace between you. But think carefully whether or not you really love either of these men. If you decide upon one of them do it with the determination to make him happy and never regret that you did not select the other suitor, no matter how things turn out. Resolve that you will never refer to the other man in your husband's hearing if you wish to keep a reasonable amount of happiness in your married life.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I find that a couple of sisters at a friend's house, and they are very nice girls, I would like to call on them, but do you think they would laugh at me, as I am only 17 and not large for my age. They are older than I am. I would like to have them for friends.

LAWRENCE.

My dear boy, just go and call on them. If they are nice girls they will like you for what you are, and a boy is always better for the friendship of good girls.

Tell them about your ambitions and your hobbies and get acquainted with their father and mother too. They will make you welcome, I am sure. Of course girls usually like boys. Men are a little older than themselves, and sometimes you will find them pleasing the escort of others. But if you have their friendship what do you care? I am taking it for granted that you do not wish to court these girls, and are waiting until you are older and know your own mind better before trying to do anything as serious as that.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is butter-milk good for the complexion? How shall I use it.

Buttermilk is very good for the complexion. Take it both inside and out. That is, drink all you want and bathe your face with it once or twice a day. It whitens and clears the skin.

TRIFLES LIGHT AS AIR.

During the warm weather desserts are more fitting that appeal to the eye and are so light that they do not tax the digestion. Most people, especially those of the masculine gender, feel that they have had no dinner, if they are deprived of a dessert. It behooves the cook to see that a dessert appears to the meal is served.

Company Apples.—Pare and core eight apples. Arrange—in a baking dish, fill the cavities with apple jelly and chopped raisins. Cook until tender, basting with sugar water and lemon juice. Ten minutes before removing from the oven decorate with quarters of almonds blanched.

Snow Puffs.—Cream a half cup of butter, add a cup of sugar, two and a half cups of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a half cup of sweet milk. Beat well and fold in four stiffly beaten whites. Steam forty-five minutes in buttered cups. Serve with strawberry sauce.

Italian Cream.—Soak two table-spoonfuls of gelatin in a fourth of a cup of cold water, scald two cups of milk, cool and add the yolks of three eggs well beaten, a pinch of salt and a fourth of a cup of sugar; cook until thick, add the gelatin, chill, and as the mixture thickens the whites of three eggs well beaten. Mold and serve. Any flavoring may be used, coffee, canton ginger, chocolate or fruit juices.

Bavarian Cream.—Soak two table-spoonfuls of granulated gelatin in a third of a cup of cold water, dissolve in a fourth of a cup of sugar and hot cream; add a half cup of the whip; from a pint of cream when the mixture begins to thicken. Do not stir, but cut and fold in the cream. Flavor with vanilla and mold.

Chocolate Junket.—Melt an ounce of chocolate (a square), add three table-spoonfuls of boiling water. Crush a junket tablet and dissolve in a table-spoonful of cold water. Warm a quart of milk until just lukewarm, add a fourth of a cup of sugar and a teaspoonful of vanilla and the melted chocolate and junket, and pour into serving cups.

The Evening Chit-Chat

DO YOU LOVE RAILWAY STATIONS?

THERE are some kinds of eavesdropping that are really quite excusable, don't you think so?

The crowd held me close behind two young people in the railway station the other night, so close that I couldn't help hearing all they said; and what is more I wouldn't have if I could. For that was the kind of eavesdropping that I call harmless.

He was tall and broad shouldered and fine looking, the kind of young man we like to call typically American. She was a little person, not at all pretty, but with a piquant, radiant face that fairly shone with the love of living. Just then it was tilted up to his, and she was saying with a voice as radiant as the face, "Oh, my dear, isn't this place lovely?"

He laughed—a hearty, infectious laugh that was also typically American.

"Well, I don't care," she protested. "It's so exciting and interesting. Everybody's going somewhere and it makes you feel kind of important and alive, and you wonder who everybody is and where they are going and if they are as happy as you are. I just love railway stations."

The crowd suddenly shifted and I was swept in another direction and rudely interrupted in my shameless eavesdropping, but not before I heard the man laugh again. Did you ever realize that a laugh can be as loving as a caress? It can.

The little person, as I said before, was not in the least pretty, while her big lover was tall and clean and handsome, the kind of man that all women just naturally fall in love with. And he had chosen her and was evidently about as much in love as a man can be. Do you want to know what I think was the charm in her that won him away from the prettier girls he might undoubtedly have had.

The fact that she loved railway stations. You are laughing at that? Well, of course, I only meant it symbolically. That little speech of hers was symbolic of the best that she, evidently found in life. She was undoubtedly one of those blessed folks who are always full of a wish of life, who are so interested, so alive and awake, that even a railway station is an absorbingly interesting place to her. Consequently I did not wonder how the man happened to fall in love with her. I only wondered if he realized how fortunate he was.

A zest in living, such as that which made this little person's face and personality radiant is partly inborn; it also has something to do with one's supply of health and vitality; but again it is partly the result of deliberately refusing to grow up, of keeping the child heart always alive within one, and of opening wide the windows of one's heart and mind to the happiness and meaning of life.

No one who has even the least shade of this charm can fail to be attractive. No one, no matter how beautiful or brilliant, is complete without it. Do you love railway stations? Is it too late for you to learn to?

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

by Henrietta D. Graue

"Is strawberry jam finer than blackberry jam?" writes a contributor. "We hardly know, but could 'Decide without great harm to either; it is much better to have both than to do with neither.'"

All jams are conveniences and luxuries, and those made at home are superior to those which are offered for sale, usually, and are much more economical, while shelves well filled with neatly labelled jars of jams and preserves speak well for the comfort of the fortunate owners.

Jam for jams may be fully ripe and, of course, fresh and sound. Few city dwellers have access to the growing fruit, but if you are among the favored few that live under your own vine and fig tree, you can gather your fruit and use it when it is in its prime; that which is picked in the morning of a sunny day possesses the finest flavor.

There is no economy in stinting the sugar, as to quantity or quality, for inferior sugar is wasted in seum, and unless the proportion of sugar and fruit is right the keeping qualities of the fruit is impaired. On the other hand, if too large quantity of sugar is used the natural flavor of the fruit is destroyed and the jams and preserves may be eaten.

Every quantity used must depend in every case on the nature of the fruit. The old rule of a pound of fruit to a pound of sugar is safe and sure, but if the fruit is very ripe and sweet sometimes it is wise to lessen the quantity and use two-thirds of a pound of sugar.

Place the fruit, after it is carefully washed and picked over, in layers with sugar in the preserving kettle. Let it stand a few minutes to extract some of the juice from the fruit and then place on the fire and cook until it becomes a thick consistent mass. Stir it frequently to crush the fruit.

When it looks clear, try a little on a plate and if it thickens, it is done. Jam does not require to be hermetically sealed and will keep in all most any receptacle, but the small jars made especially for it are quaint and pleasing and may be used many seasons.

Raspberries, blackberries and all small fruits may be made into jam by the same process as the one just described.

There are some fruits that combine excellently for instance, currants and raspberries, strawberries and currants, and currants and wild cherries, in fact all small fruits are improved by the addition of a few currants and if berries are over-ripe, currants that are just turning should always be cooked with them.

Wiesbaden preserves are the most famous in the world and perhaps the most costly of all our imported sweets; made in the following manner, small fruits resembling man closely that only an epicure can distinguish the difference.

Fill pint jars with as many berries as they will hold; pour over them a hot syrup. After standing a few minutes, the berries will shrivel and more should be added. Cover and cook in a canner, or boiler until the fruit looks clear; fasten the tops and place where the air will not strike them while cooling.

Strawberries and red raspberries keep their color best in stoneware jars. If glass jars are used they should be water-jarred in paper. Pint jars are better for berries than the quart size. In using self-sealing jars, the rubber ring must show an even edge all around or air will seep in.

Fads and Fashions

New York, July 3.—During the last few years the popularity of the one piece frothing frock for street wear has steadily increased and now such frocks in silk, in light weight wool, in linen and even the thinner cottons are accepted as correct for such use where once they would have been considered odd and out of place. This new custom undoubtedly means increased comfort, for a coat and skirt costume with separate blouse, even when made of very light weight wool or of silk, is warmer than a frock of light material, but it is one that may easily be abused.

One objectionable feature of these frocks is the excessive shortness of the sleeves, often supplemented by extreme lowness at the throat, the inexpressive, ready made frocks being particularly prone to these foibles. Of course it is an easy matter to wear a guimpe with such a frock, a guimpe that will supply little undersleeves as well as chemise or collar. Every shop shows such guimpes in great and pleasing variety.

Collars, hand embroidered or ornamented by both hand embroidery and lace, have to a noticeable extent superseded the frill collar on the latest French frocks, the frill, though attractive, having been overtaken. Often these collars do not meet in front, but extend only around to each side of the throat, the space between being filled by one of the wide jabots. This gives a cut with a suggestion of squareness at the throat, in place of the more familiar round or pointed lines, and many women to whom the latter types of collarless neckfinish, or rather low collar neck finish, are unbecoming, will find that this square line is kinder.

The slender, rolled collar with pointed front finish is gaining in favor and on simple tub frocks is both becoming and trim. On the French models, these so-called Robespierre collars are frequently to be seen, and the collar running in straight lines, from the base of the throat to some point on a line with it to the shoulder points is also liked, this kind of collar being usually associated with some sort of soft folds or revers drapery or with front frills.

The transparent or semi-transparent guimpe with sleeves worn with a heavy blouse which is sleeveless is exceedingly practical for the hot weather and, luckily, is once more in style. Most often, perhaps, it is in chiffon or not or other sheer stuff chocking the color of the frock, but one sees it too in sheer white or cream lingerie material associated with a jumper blouse of darker coloring. This sort of thing must be carefully handled if it is to have smartness, but when successful the arrangement is very fresh and pretty.

Some extremely good looking models are made up in black or very dark blue charmeuse or taffeta, and chiffon sleeves to match the frock, and, of course, a little more coolness than the frock, but really mounted on flesh colored tulle, may be provided for wear when the lingerie sleeves seem undesirable.

This is one way of getting around the discomfort of the modish long sleeves; and sometimes a close fitting cuff or other frock material is used with a semi-transparent upper sleeve, which affords a little more coolness than the long sleeve, entirely of the heavier material.

As midsummer approaches the short sleeves of course wins more and more favor, and the sleeves reaching to the elbow or a little below and left wide and open there with deep frills or wide turn-back cuff or wide, open undersleeve for finish are exceedingly cool and comfortable for hot weather wear; but the long sleeve does have a charm and knowing it in the street frock, possibly because it is seldom seen in any well cut and original phase upon the cheap ready made frocks or blouse offered in the less discriminating shops.

Lingerie frocks worn under draped tunics of colored silk suggest that frocks are being much worn. In Paris and other a practical suggestion for the doing over of last year's lingerie frock whose sheer bodice has lost its freshness. Lettuce green, cerise, fuchsia, the brighter blues, all the gay colors of the season are effective in this connection, the white under their semi-transparent texture softening their tone becomingly. Some of the purples are particularly good under the white.

White sash and white taffeta waists of the so-called skirt form have long sleeves with deep frills falling over the hand. The shoulders are cut very long, with the sleeves set in with a bound or piped edge at the armhole. The cut is the kimono form, for in spite of the fact that the sleeve sets in there is no shoulder seam. Buttoning down the front the three-quarter standing band which extends three-quarters of the way around. To this is set a second collar which rolls loosely, falling in the characteristic point at the front and turning away to form the open rolling effect. Deep frills of plaited net are placed under the edge of the collar, making an attractive finish for the front of the waist.

The latest eccentricity of fashion is underwear decorated with a cross motive. The cross is made of lace or is embroidered by hand, and is placed on the front of the chemise or nightgown, exactly in the center. When lace insertion is used to make the cross one piece is laid over the other and the fabric is buttonholed over the lace all the way round the edges and then clipped away. The Maltese cross with four equal sides, is used.

Most economical are the yoke collars of embroidered tulle and tucker or plaited point d'esprit and net, frilled with lace. They are wide enough to cover the shoulders and deep enough to reach below the bust in front and below the shoulder places in the back, so that no other trimming is necessary for the gown. Cuffs and sleeve frills are made to match.

Linen weaves appear quite heavy, almost resembling pique, in medium weight and again exquisitely sheer, calling for lace medallions and frothy little Valenciennes ruffles on the edge.

Small bows of black velvet give a decidedly chic touch to the lingerie gown. They dot the floun or appear at intervals around the flounces again they appear on sleeves, instead of buttons, running from the wrist to the elbow on the under side of the sleeve. Tulle parasols of plain color carry floral and Persian patterns, which for the most parts are wide ribbons. The greatest assortment of color schemes prevails, from light, delicate shades to rich shadowy ones, and to rich subdued colorings.

Exceptionally pretty is a parasol of white chiffon, printed in shaded pink roses, and lined with white mousseline. A solid color of the parasol is decorated with a large butterfly of black Chantilly lace. The edge is finished with a narrow band of black velvet ribbon.

FREQUENCY OF MEALS.

"At no time during infancy is it desirable to feed the baby more often than five or six times in the 24 hours, and toward the end of the first year the number should not exceed four," says Dr. Joseph Brennermann, professor of diseases of children, emphasizing the danger of over-feeding. The infant needs to be fed often than the adult, but most infants are fed too often, food being often supplied when only water is needed. The same reasons that dictate reduction of the number of meals for the adult hold also for infant feeding, two meals rather than four for the average adult, and four rather than six or eight for the infant, after the first year.

GOLDEN WEDDING DAY FOR CLINTON COUPLE

MR. AND MRS. A. B. ROGERS ENTERTAINED COMPANY OF FIFTY FRIENDS TODAY.

WERE EARLY PIONEERS

Mr. Rogers Located at Newark in 1855, While Mrs. Rogers Was Born in This State.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Clinton, July 3.—Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Rogers of this village today celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Fifty or more guests were present and enjoyed the hospitality of their home and wished Mr. and Mrs. Rogers continued health and happiness. Friends from Delavan, Elkhorn, Darien, Beloit, Janesville, Birmingham, New York, and Dakota, were invited.

Archie Burdette Rogers and Lucinda Elmira Jones were united in marriage July 3, 1862. The ceremony was performed at the bride's home on Blooming Prairie, Darien township, Wisconsin, and afterwards they resided on what is now known as the Stoney farm. Several years later Mr. Rogers engaged in the mercantile business with Griswold and Weaver at Clinton, which for many years was the largest general store of this place.

They built and lived in what is now known as the Randall place. After selling out his interest in the store Mr. Rogers then went into partnership with N. K. Jones and established the first furniture and undertaking business in Clinton. Farm life appealed to them, however, and after some years they purchased what is now known as the Soper farm near Summerville. They later bought the Dyke farm, one mile east of Clinton and after living there fifteen years, again made a change, taking up their residence on the Simons farm, joining the village of East Milwaukee street. Here they have resided for the past few years.

Six children came to bless their union. Five are still living and were present at the reunion today. Those living are: Mrs. Minnie Mayberry, Mrs. Will Hamilton, Mrs. Allie Hamilton and Frank B. and Herman A. Rogers, all of Clinton. Sixteen years ago Mr. Rogers met with a serious accident resulting in an injury to his back on account of which he has since been confined to the house. His general health is very good, however, and he enjoys visits from his friends and he still directs and plans his business affairs.

Mr. Rogers was born June 27, 1837 at McCramville, Cortland county, New York. He came West March 5, 1855 and purchased a farm on Jefferson prairie to which he brought his bride after their marriage in 1862. Mrs. Rogers was born in Darien, Wisconsin territory, June 8, 1841, and was the daughter of early pioneers of Southern Wisconsin. She has always lived in this state.

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

SINGING.

By Howard L. Rann.

SINGING is a form of vocal fireworks indulged in by people who never know when anybody has had enough. It is used for the purpose of entertaining guests who are too polite to try to escape. There are two kinds of singing—legal and illegal to which may be added several intermediate varieties, none of which attempt to keep in the same block with the international pitch. Legal singing is always confined to by some musical college which teaches the graduate how to breathe from the hips, up and throw the tone against the front teeth in a determined and fearless manner. A singer thus equipped can back a roomful of resigned guests into a corner and hurl cadenzas, arpeggios, octave jumps and blustering top notes at them until the cows come home, without showing the slightest fatigue, hoarseness or intention of letting up. Illegal singing is the most common variety, and should be accompanied by a jail sentence. It is resorted to by people who are self-taught and not afraid of anything in human form. The illegal singer generally carries around a tremolo which starts in one key and winds up in another, and is never able to go into the head register without changing gears. There is nothing in the whole realm of musical literature that will cause an illegal singer to commit a balk. Singing is taught at so much per teach by perspiring post-graduates who can tell a future Melba at once by the size of her father's bank account. Every teacher has a method which he refuses to let go of at less than $4 a half hour. Every method is based on the primordial principle of opening the mouth at an angle of forty-five degrees and discharging the voice at the rate of 400 revolutions a minute. When this is kept up until the audience is glassy-eyed, the singer is said to be a virtuoso. One experience with a genuine, hand-sewed virtuoso is generally sufficient for people who are not accustomed to mingling with the higher and more expensive forms of art.

The Three Guardsmen

... By ...
ALEXANDRE DUMAS

"Oh, madame," cried the young woman, falling on her knees, "upon my soul, I am ready to die for your majesty! There are traitors here, but by the holy name of the Virgin I swear that none is more devoted to your majesty than I am. Those studs which the king speaks of, you gave them to the Duke of Buckingham, did you not? Those studs were in a little rosewood box which he held under his arm? Am I deceived? Is it not so, madame? We must have them back again."

"Yes, without doubt it must be so," cried the queen. "But how am I to act? How can it be effected?"

"Some one must be sent to the duke. Place confidence in me, madame. Do me that honor, my queen, and I will find a messenger."

"But I must write." "Oh, yes; that is indispensable! Two words from the hand of your majesty and your own private seal."

"But these two words would bring about my condemnation, divorce, exile!" "Yes, if they fell into infamous hands, but I will answer for these two words being delivered to their address."

"Oh, I must then place my life, my honor, my reputation, all in your hands?" "Yes, yes, madame, you must, and I will save them all."

"But how—tell me at least how?" "My husband has been sent at liberty these two or three days. I have not yet had time to see him again. He will do anything I wish. He will set out upon receiving an order from me without knowing what he carries, and he will remit your majesty's letter without even knowing it is from your majesty."

The queen took the two hands of the young woman with a burst of emotion, gazed at her as if to read her very heart and, seeing nothing but sincerity in her beautiful eyes, embraced her tenderly. Then she ran to a little table upon which were pens, ink and paper. She wrote two lines, sealed the letter with her private seal and gave it to Mme. Bonacieux.

"And now," said the queen, "we are forgetting one very necessary thing—money." Mme. Bonacieux blushed.

"Yes, that is true," said she, "and I will confess to your majesty that my husband—"

"Your husband has none; is that what you would say?" "Oh, yes, he has some, but he is very avaricious—that is his fault. Nevertheless, let not your majesty be uneasy. I will find means."

"And I have none, either," said the queen. "But wait a minute." Anne of Austria ran to her jewel case.

"Here," said she, "here is a ring of great value, as I have been assured. It came from my brother, the king of Spain. It is mine, and I am at liberty to dispose of it. Take this ring, make money of it and let your husband set out."

"In an hour you shall be obeyed, madame." "You see the address," said the queen, speaking so low that Mme. Bonacieux could hardly hear what she said—"To Milord Duke of Buckingham, London."

Mme. Bonacieux kissed the hands of the queen, concealed the paper in the bosom of her dress and disappeared with the lightness of a bird.

Ten minutes afterward she was at home. As she told the queen she had not seen her husband since his liberation, she was ignorant of the change that had taken place in him with respect to the cardinal, a change which had since been strengthened by two or three visits from the Count de Rochefort, who had become the best friend of Bonacieux.

The first moment had been delayed five days, which under any other circumstances might have appeared rather long to Master Bonacieux, but he had in the visit he had made to the cardinal and in the visits Rochefort had made him ample subjects for reflection.

On her side, Mme. Bonacieux's thoughts constantly reverted to D'Artegman, that handsome young man who was so brave and appeared to be so much in love with her. Married at eighteen to M. Bonacieux, having always lived among her husband's friends, Mme. Bonacieux had remained insensible to vulgar seductions, but at this period the title of gentleman had a particularly great influence with the bourgeoisie or citizen class, and D'Artegman was a gentleman.

The married couple then, although they had not seen each other for eight days and that during that time serious

"Ah, you are a Cardinalist, then, monsieur, are you?" cried his wife, "and you serve the party who'll treat your wife and insult your queen?" "Private interests are as nothing before the interests of all. I am for those who save the state," said Bonacieux emphatically. (This was one of Rochefort's sentences.) "Besides, see here the bag of money which the cardinal himself gave to me."

"And what do you know about the state you talk of?" said Mme. Bonacieux, shrugging her shoulders. "You are selling yourself, body and soul, to the devil for money!" "No, but to the cardinal. Hold your tongue! Hold your tongue, madame. We may be overheard."

"Yes, you are right. I should be ashamed for any one to know your baseness."

"But what do you require of me, then? Come, let us see!" "I have told you. You must set out instantly, monsieur. You must accomplish loyally the commission with which I doign to charge you, and on that condition I pardon everything, I forget everything; and, still further—and she held out her hand to him—"I give you my love again."

Bonacieux was a coward, and he was avaricious. But he loved his wife—he was softened. Mme. Bonacieux saw that he hesitated.

"Come! Have you made your mind up?" said she.

"But, my dear love, reflect a little upon what you require of me. London is far from Paris, very far, and perhaps the commission with which you charge me is not without dangers."

"Of what consequence is that if you avoid them?" "Well, then, Mme. Bonacieux," said the mercer, "well, then, I positively refuse. Intrigues terrify me. I have seen the Bastille. That's a frightful place."

"Well, if you do not go this very instant I will have you arrested by the queen's orders, and I will have you placed in that Bastille which you dread so much."

"Have me arrested on the part of the queen," said he, "and I—I will appeal to his eminence."

At once Mme. Bonacieux saw that she had gone too far, and she was terrified at having communicated so much.

"Well, I will give it up, then," said the young woman, sighing. "It is as well as it is. Say no more about it."

"Yes; at least you should tell me what I should have to do in London," replied Bonacieux, who remembered a little too late that Rochefort had desired him to endeavor to obtain his wife's secrets.

"It is of no use for you to know anything about it," said the young woman whom an instinctive mistrust now impelled to draw back.

He resolved, then, that instant to hasten to the residence of the Count de Rochefort and tell him that the queen was seeking for a messenger to send to London.

"Pardon me for leaving you," said he; "but, not knowing you would come to see me, I had made an engagement with a friend. I shall soon return. Wait only a few minutes for me, and I will come and conduct you back to the Louvre."

"Thank you, monsieur," replied Mme. Bonacieux. "I shall return very safely to the Louvre by myself."

Bonacieux kissed his wife's hand and set off at a quick pace.

"Well," said Madame Bonacieux when her husband had shut the street door, and she found herself alone, "there wanted nothing to complete that poor creature but being a cardinalist. And I, who have answered for him to the queen. She will take me for one of those wretches with whom the palace swarms and which are placed about her as spies. Ah, M. Bonacieux, I hate you, and by my word, you shall pay for this!"

"Take this ring, make money of it and let your husband set out."

events had taken place in which both were concerned, accosted each other with a degree of preoccupation. Nevertheless M. Bonacieux manifested real joy and advanced toward his wife with open arms.

Mme. Bonacieux presented her cheek to him.

"Let us talk a little," said she. "It is of a thing of the highest interest and upon which our future fortune perhaps depends I would speak."

"The complexion of our fortune has changed very much since I saw you, Mme. Bonacieux, and I should not be astonished if in the course of a few months it were to excite envy of many folks."

"Particularly if you obey the instructions I am about to give you."

"To me?"

"Yes, to you. There is a good and holy action to be performed, monsieur, and much money to be gained at the same time."

"Much money to be gained?" said Bonacieux.

"Yes, much."

"About how much, pray?"

"A thousand pistoles perhaps."

"What is to be done?"

"You must set out immediately for London: I will give you a paper which you must not part with on any account and which you will deliver into the proper hands."

"I go to London! I have nothing to do in London."

"But others require that you should go there. An illustrious person sends you, an illustrious person awaits you, and the recompense will exceed your expectations."

"More intrigues! Nothing but intrigues! Thank you, madame, I am aware of them now; M. le Cardinal has enlightened me on that head."

"The cardinal?" cried Mme. Bonacieux. "Have you seen the cardinal?"

"He sent for me," answered the mercer proudly. "He gave me his hand, and he called me his friend."

"You serve the cardinal?"

"Yes, madame; and, as his servant, I will not allow you to be concerned in plots against the safety of the state or to assist in the intrigues of a woman who is not a Frenchwoman and who has a Spanish heart. Fortunately we have the great cardinal, his vigilant eye watches over and penetrates to the bottom of hearts."

Bonacieux was repeating, word for word, a sentence which he had heard the Count de Rochefort make use of.

"Ah, M. Bonacieux, I hate you, and you shall pay for this!"

People with kidney ills want to be cured. When one suffers the tortures of an aching back, relief is eagerly sought for. There are many remedies today that relieve, but do not cure. Doan's Kidney Pills have cured thousands. Here is proof: Bird Leffingwell, 620 Hackett St., Beloit, Wis., says: "I began using Doan's Kidney Pills about ten years ago and obtained the most satisfactory results. At that time I had an attack of backache, which clung to me persistently, and gradually grew worse. I finally found that my kidneys were weak and accordingly procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. In a short time the kidney was restored to their normal condition and I felt like my old self again. Recently when my kidneys were disordered, I used Doan's Kidney Pills and I again received the desired results. I hope that other sufferers of kidney complaint will give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, July 3, 1872.—Yesterday's Races. The interest of sporting men, and others who do not come strictly under that head but can enjoy a good exhibition of speed, was centered upon yesterday afternoon's trotting at the Park Association course.

The first trot for yesterday afternoon was open to all horses. James Van Etta entered b. m. Lady Douglass, J. I. Case of Racine entered b. m. Capitola and G. R. McLann entered b. m. McLann. The first and second heats were taken by Lady Douglass in 2:30, McLann coming in second. Lady Douglass was then withdrawn, as she was in no condition to go, and the race was called a draw.

The second trot was for horses that never beat 2:50, beat 3 in 5. A. B. Douglass entered g. m. Lady Wooster, D. Hawver g. m. Lady Dodge, Dr. Coakley b. m. Victoria, Mr. Schuyler, b. m. UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams
BY WALT MASON

The lion hearted Richard in happy days of yore, was wont to—butter people and wade in crimson gore; he looked around for victims, his hand on battle-axe, and when he ran across them he calmly broke their backs. He's been the gaudy hero of scores of rattling books; old men have told about him in winter inglenooks; and even yet the minstrel about his glory sings—but no one accused him of doing useful things. Had Richard stayed in England and buckled down to tasks; had he sworn off on bloodshed and pawned his battle-axe, and tried to give his people a half-way decent reign, he would not be the hero of hughesome poet's strain; his bones would lie a-crumbling among forgotten kings—our heroes are not people who do the useful things. Today we make an idol of him who wields his jawe; the man of flakling cymbals is given the applause; if he goes forth and bellows for this or that reform,

LION HEART We call him lion hearted, an oak tree in the storm, a bulwark of the nation, a David with his slings—we never want a hero who does the useful things. The men who build the cities and make the deserts bloom; the men whose busy fingers attend the mill and loom; who send the ships of commerce across the vasty deep; who toil to further science when others are asleep; who rob the hills of riches, the quiveries of their stores; these go their way obscurely; their names of fame unknown, while we applaud the fakir for whom the walkin rings—our heroes are not people who do the useful things.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.
